

Observations

1. School is like a spoonful of sugar.
At 5 you get the sweets.
And at 15 it's the cane.
2. They suppress one's individuality and discourage the development of one's individual talents by telling the pupils that they cannot possibly succeed in the field that they want to pursue.
3. Too much emphasis is channelled into enhancing the reputation of the school. e.g. School uniform: "Uniform" Latin meaning of one form. Every human being though needs to express individuality, but schools in general discourage this.
